HOW IS YOUR NEWSPAPER MADE?

MEGAN GALBREATH
Reporter/News Editor

The reporter/news editor gathers news and information around the community to publish in the Pulaski County Journal weekly. In addition to attending as many local government and school meetings as possible, the reporter/news editor also sorts through all the submissions, press releases, letters to the editor and photos to share that information with the community. The news editor also documents events for historical value.

news@pulaskijournal.com

ANDREW VAN AUKEN
Advertising Sales Manager

The advertising sales manager emails, calls and visits businesses around the community to get a better understanding of how our local businesses operate and obtain more knowledge about their products and services. The advertising sales manager takes this information and helps them create advertisements to be placed into both the Pulaski County Journal and The Independent.

sales@pulaskijournal.com

AKACIA DARNELL
Graphic Designer, Layout

Once the advertisement information is collected, the graphic designer turns that information into eye-catching advertisements which are then placed together on a page and published in the Pulaski County Journal and in The Independent. The graphic designer also designs and creates many print projects that are requested such as business cards, banners, company forms and signature stamps.

design@pulaskijournal.com

LEROY STOUT
Delivery

After each publication is printed at the press, the delivery person loads up the newspapers and sets off to begin the delivery process. The Independent is delivered on Fridays to area stores for customers to pick up for free and local post offices to ensure everyone in the county and surrounding areas receives the paper. On Tuesdays the Pulaski County Journal is delivered to stores for customers to purchase and post offices for subscriber distribution.

PAUL HETTINGER
Sports Editor

The sports editor can be found at many of the county's varsity sporting events. During the games, the sports editor takes hundreds of photos, later editing the number down to a few photos to include in the print edition of the newspaper, while uploading the rest to pulaskijournal.com for purchase. After the games, the sports editor writes the story of the game from their notes and game stats provided by the varsity coaches.

sports@pulaskijournal.com

KARI STOUT

Layout, Accounts, Office Manager

Layout is one of the final steps in making a newspaper each week. After the articles have been written, photos taken and advertisements designed, they are all placed together onto the pages of the Pulaski County Journal before being sent to the press for printing. The accounts manager ensures all the advertisements and print projects are invoiced and that all office accounts are taken care of. The office manager oversees the office at the Pulaski County Press.

accounts@pulaskijournal.com

FRANKIE
Office Supervisor

Frankie takes her job very seriously. When a visitor enters the building Frankie will often greet them, sometimes vocally and other times she gives a nice side-eye and continues to sleep. During the workday, Frankie makes her rounds throughout the office, most often during lunchtime, visiting each staff member's desk to ensure they are doing their job appropriately and they are keeping their focus by snacking on Frankie-approved food.

TRACEY COLLINS
Circulation Manager

The circulation manager keeps track of all the newspaper subscriptions for the print and online editions and ensures that the Pulaski County Journal and The Independent are mailed accurately each week. The circulation manager works closely with the delivery person and local post offices to head-off any potential problems with the delivery process. The circulation manager also coordinates the insertion of sales fliers into both publications.
