Indiana Landmarks announces annual list of 10 Most Endangered

Indiana Landmarks announced the 10 Most Endangered, an annual list of Hoosier landmarks in jeopardy. The list includes two churches, a hotel, a county courthouse, and more.

Places that land on the 10 Most Endangered list often face a combination of problems rather than a single threat — abandonment, neglect, dilapidation, obsolete use, unreasonable above-market asking price, owners who simply lack money for repairs, remote location.

“Indiana Landmarks uses its 10 Most Endangered list in several ways. Sometimes it serves an educational role. It functions as an advocacy tool. And it can assist in raising funds needed to save a place,” said Marsh Davis, president of the nonprofit preservation organization. “Every listing comes with significant challenges. In all cases, when an endangered place lands on our list, we commit to seeking solutions that lead to rescue and revitalization.”

The 10 Most Endangered in 2019 includes two sites repeating from last year’s list and eight new entries:

- Cannelton Historic District, Cannelton (repeat entry from 2018 list)
- Church of the Holy Cross, Indianapolis
- Commandant’s Row at Indiana Veterans’ Home, West Lafayette (repeat entry from 2018 list)
- Crump Theatre, Columbus
- Downtown Attica
- Howe Mansion, Howe Military Academy
- Mineral Springs Hotel, Paoli
- Peru Circus Winter Quarters, Peru
- Pulaski County Courthouse, Winamac
- Reid Memorial Presbyterian Church, Richmond

Demolition has claimed only 16 of the 139 Most Endangered sites listed since 1991, while 85 places are completely restored or no longer endangered.

Pulaski County Courthouse, Winamac

It’s hard to look at the stately Romanesque Revival-style Pulaski County Courthouse in Winamac and imagine a parking lot in its place. But if a proposal by county officials is carried out, the county will lose its most prominent landmark, and Indiana will lose one of its historic courthouses.

It’s no secret that the 1895 courthouse needs some work — officials grapple with solutions to space constraints, accessibility, security concerns and the normal responsibilities that come with maintaining a large historic building. To add space, the county constructed a justice center with a new jail in 1996. Recently, crews installed a new elevator in the courthouse to improve access to all levels. A few years ago, commissioners solicited a proposal to renovate and add on to the courthouse but dismissed it as too expensive.

A new plan introduced suggests moving all county and court functions to a proposed addition to the justice center and demolishing the historic courthouse, replacing it with a parking lot and landscaping.

Alarmed at the notion of losing their courthouse, Winamac residents formed a Save the Pulaski County Courthouse group. Members have packed commission meetings, asking officials to reconsider demolition. Indiana Landmarks has offered to retain the same architectural firm the county has been working with to look at cost-effective strategies for repair, space, security and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) issues.

New 'face' of the Delphi murder suspect

The Carroll County Sheriff's Department, FBI, Delphi Police Department and the Indiana State Police are requesting assistance to identify the person depicted in this sketch who is believed to be connected to the murders of Abigail J. "Abby" Williams and Liberty Rose Lynn "Libby" German. This investigation has been ongoing since the discovery of the girls bodies the early afternoon of Feb. 14, 2017, in a wooded area near the Delphi Historic Trail, about a half mile upstream from the High Bridge.

A new sketch of the suspect, appearing to be in his mid-twenties to mid-thirties and believed responsible for the murders of the girls, was shared with the Delphi community and media on April 22, 2019. As the investigation has progressed, information has been continuously reviewed and examined and this sketch more accurately depicts the face of the suspect from the video recorded on Liberty German's cell phone while she and Abigail were on the High Bridge.

Also shared with the Delphi community was more of the audio, as well as previously unreleased video from Libby's phone. The sketch, audio and video footage can be viewed at this Indiana State Police website link: <https://www.in.gov/isp/delphi.htm>.

Anyone with information about this case is encouraged to send tips to abbyandlibbytip@cacoshrf.com. Email is the preferred way to send tips to help solve this crime.
