September Is Sepsis Awareness Month

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control, there are more than 1 million cases of sepsis each year — and the disease kills more than 258,000 Americans on an annual basis.

Famous people who have died of sepsis, as a complication to other illnesses or conditions that they developed, include movie stars Patty Duke and Christopher Reeve, and boxing champion Muhammad Ali.

What is sepsis?
Sepsis is the body's overwhelming and potentially life-threatening response to an infection. It can lead to tissue damage, organ failure and even death.

What causes sepsis?
Any type of infection, anywhere in the body, can cause sepsis. This can include everything including seemingly minor infections on the skin to urinary tract infections, pneumonia or appendicitis.

Who can get sepsis?
Sepsis can affect any person of any age, from any type of infection, no matter how minor.

Are some people more at risk for getting sepsis?
While sepsis can affect anyone, you may be at a higher risk if you:

- Have a weakened immune system
- Are under age 10 or over age 65
- Have an indwelling catheter or IV
- Recently had surgery or have been hospitalized
- Have a chronic illness (diabetes, AIDS, cancer, kidney or liver disease, etc.)
- Have a severe burn or wound

What are the signs or symptoms of sepsis?
There is no single sign or symptom of sepsis. Because sepsis stems from infection, symptoms can include common infection signs, such as:

DIARRHEA AND VOMITING

SORE THROAT

SHIVERING, FEVER, FEELING VERY COLD

EXTREME PAIN OR FEELING WORSE THAN EVER

PALE OR DISCOLORED SKIN

SHORTNESS OF BREATH

If you have an infection along with any of these symptoms, you should seek medical treatment immediately.
