HERE'S WHAT YOU MISSED in this week's PULASKI COUNTY JOURNAL

Gutwein invites aspiring teachers to apply for scholarship

State Rep. Doug Gutwein (R-Francesville) encourages aspiring teachers planning or pursuing a degree in education to apply for the Next Generation Hoosier Educators Scholarship.

Current high school seniors, college freshmen and college sophomores can earn a renewable scholarship of up to $7,500 each year for four academic years, totaling $30,000. Scholarship recipients must maintain a 3.0 cumulative GPA and complete at least 30 credit hours per year, and commit to teaching for five consecutive years in Indiana after earning their degree.

Gutwein supported legislation establishing the scholarship in order to attract more high-achieving students to pursue a career in Hoosier classrooms.

"Indiana has so many great teachers in our classrooms," Gutwein said. "We want to ensure that upcoming talent remains in Indiana to continue educating our kids for years to come. I encourage any student considering a career in teaching to apply."

Applicants must be in the top 20% of their high school graduating class or have earned a score in the top 20th percentile on the SAT or ACT. Interested students should be nominated by a teacher and submit a nomination form with their application, which is available at ScholarTrack.IN.gov.

The scholarship has already helped more than 40 Hoosiers become licensed teachers. Last year, 393 students applied, with applications from 212 high schools representing 82 of Indiana's 92 counties.

To apply before the Nov. 30 deadline, visit www.LearnMoreIndiana.org/nextteacher. Gutwein said finalists will be named by Jan. 10, 2020, to be interviewed in Indianapolis on March 14, 2020. Recipients will be notified by April 3, 2020.

Health officials urge homeowners to maintain septic systems

The Indiana State Department of Health (ISDH) is reminding Hoosiers to maintain their septic systems as part of SepticSmart Week, a national observance designed to educate homeowners and communities about the importance of caring for septic systems.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), more than one in five households in the United States (60 million people) depend on septic systems to treat their wastewater. Nearly 39% of Hoosiers use septic systems to treat wastewater from their homes and businesses. About 15,000 septic systems are installed and about 6,000 repaired in Indiana each year. Proper maintenance of these systems is a vital part of protecting public health.

"Septic system maintenance is important and is the best way to protect human and environmental health," said Mike Mettler, REHS, director of environmental public health at ISDH. "Have your system checked at least every three years and keep records of all maintenance work."

Septic system owners are responsible for maintaining their onsite wastewater treatment systems. SepticSmart Week provides homeowners an opportunity to learn measures that will help them properly use and maintain their systems and protect their investments in their homes.

Homeowners with septic systems are urged to follow these tips:

- Have systems inspected every three years by a licensed contractor, and have tanks pumped every three to five years, or more frequently if necessary.
- Avoid pouring fats, grease and solids down the drain.
- Monitor water use and spread out laundry and dishwasher loads throughout the day. Too much water at once can overload a system.
- Fix plumbing leaks and consider installing faucet aerators.
- Never park or drive on a system's absorption field where the vehicle's weight could damage buried pipes or disrupt underground flow.
