HERE'S WHAT YOU MISSED IN THIS WEEK'S PULASKI COUNTY JOURNAL...

County conservation essay winners announced

On Feb. 19, the Pulaski County Soil & Water Conservation District (SWCD) and Purdue Extension-Pulaski County held their annual meeting at the Pulaski County Highway Garage in Winamac.

Present at the meeting were the top three fifth-grade winners from West Central and Eastern Pulaski Elementary Schools that have written essays based on the natural resources curriculum "Water Riches." During the meeting, the students discovered how they placed in each school's contest and received their awards.

"Water Riches" is taught to the county's fifth-grade students so they can learn more about the hydrologic cycle, watersheds and one of Indiana's most precious resources — water. SWCD and extension educators traveled to the schools with hands-on experiments to demonstrate water-related concepts. Upon completion, students were invited to participate in an essay contest to help reinforce what they learned.

At West Central Elementary School, Julian Luzadder was awarded first place. He is the son of Sarah and Bryan. The second-place winner was Rylie Allen. The third-place award went to Xayla Keys.

Ellie Cook, daughter of Chad and Brigid, was awarded first place in Eastern Pulaski's essay contest. Brendan Day was the second-place winner. Colton Benninghoff received the third-place award.

Both first-place winners read their essays to the audience at the annual meeting and they were enjoyed by all in attendance.

This conservation essay contest is sponsored by the Pulaski County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Eastern Pulaski fifth-grade essay winners were Ellie Cook, Brendan Day and Colton Benninghoff.

West Central fifth-grade essay winners were Julian Luzadder, Rylie Allen and Xayla Keys.

HERE'S WHAT YOU MISSED IN THIS WEEK'S PULASKI COUNTY JOURNAL...

While waiting for spring, start a garden inside

Submitted by Natalie Daily Federer, Pulaski County Extension Office Director, Educator

If only spring would hurry-up and arrive! For avid gardeners and farmers alike, waiting for the weather to warm up and the soil to catch-up as well takes a lot of patience. For many gardeners, the wait can come to an end by starting seeds indoors.

We have noticed an increase in the popularity of gardening and residents becoming more interested and curious in how their food is produced and how far it travels in transport to get to our community. Raising your own vegetables can be fun and rewarding but does take work, planning, and some research.

When starting seeds inside, some items to consider are space, selection of seeds, light source, a good environment (not too hot, not too cold, with humidity), containers to grow in, soil types, planting, thinning and then transplanting. I think that one of the most fun and interesting aspects of growing or starting your seeds inside is the flexibility and creativity you have in seed selections.

When purchasing plants at a store, normally, hardy, traditional types of plants are provided with limited choices. For example, tomato plant selections can be limited to certain varieties at a store due to popularity and hardiness. But you can pick and diversify your seed selection.

Conducting research on your seed varieties is vital.

Especially if growing numerous seeds in the same container. All the seeds need to have similar needs for survival such as soil type, exposure to sun light and heat, watering needs, etc. When purchasing seeds, make sure to purchase "fresh" seeds. This means to check the freshness or packaging date on the packet.

Heirloom seeds are defined as seeds grown prior to World War II and can be flowers, fruits, and vegetable seeds. May heirloom seeds are preserved for numerous generations and some have even traveled the world? Immigrants would carry seeds from their home countries to America in envelopes, letters and their pockets. You can see there is a tremendous creativity when using heirloom seeds.

A following article will focus on the many variations for growing containers and for seed planting. For more information about this topic, visit the Purdue Extension Education Store online at <https://edustore.purdue.edu> to learn more about this topic and other agricultural, healthy living, and youth development related topics. You can also learn more about gardening through the Master Gardner program <http://www.hort.purdue.edu/mg/>.

If you have any questions or comments, feel free to stop by the Purdue Extension Office of Pulaski County or call at 574-946-3412. During the spring and summer, we will be providing some free, hands-on, garden-related workshops at our community garden.

Scholarships for college students available now

Current college students may be eligible for scholarships through the Pulaski County Community Foundation. Applications will be available March 13 for the Gary M. Schnapf Memorial 4-H Scholarship, the K. Stuart Gast Scholarship, Ralph E. Winters Scholarship, and the Back Home Again in Indiana Scholarship.

Students must apply online through the Pulaski County Community Foundation's (PCCF) Web page at www.pulaskiccf.org. Deadline for applications is April 10, at 3 p.m.

Applicants for the Back Home Again in Indiana Scholarship must be: at least 21 years or older, reside in Pulaski County, enrolled in or applying to a training program or accredited college or university, and in need of financial assistance.

Applicants for the Gary M. Schnapf Memorial 4-H Scholarship must be: Fulton County residents who are at least second semester college freshmen and 10-year Fulton County Dairy 4-H members. The scholarship may also be awarded to 10-year 4-H members.

Applicants for the K. Stuart Gast Scholarship must be: current or original Pulaski County residents; graduates from high school as Pulaski County residents; at least second semester freshmen; currently attending the Herron School of Art and Design in Indianapolis, Butler University's Jordan College of Music, or the School of Music at Indiana University in Bloomington.

Applicants for the Ralph E. Winters Scholarship must be: Culver Community High School graduates who are at least second semester freshmen and plan to enroll full-time in their sophomore year or above in a technical program such as engineering, pharmacy, mathematics, science, nursing, agriculture or a technical certificate program. Students must be enrolled in an accredited Indiana institution of higher education.

For more information on these or any other PCCF scholarships, please call 574-946-0906 or email Kim Krause, scholarship coordinator at kskrause@pulaskiccf.org.

HERE'S WHAT YOU MISSED IN THIS WEEK'S PULASKI COUNTY JOURNAL...

Zombie outbreak at library

What would prom be without the tradition of naming a king and queen? The two lucky candidates were Kyrsten Long and Tucker Johansen.

Zombies invaded Winamac on Friday. About 50 teenagers and zombies enjoyed making noise in the quiet halls of the Pulaski County Public Library at the annual Zombie Prom.

Along with the spooky silliness, zombies enjoyed several snacks including eyeballs.

As part of the activities, teens played Pin the Organ on the Zombie and tried their skills during the Zombie Nerf gun shootout.
